The little girl Moraa wandered away towards the edge of the dark firewood, where it came down close behind the leg cabin where she lived with her mother. She was attracted by one pleasant object after another and walked until she was tired. Then she turned round and started walking as she thought for home.

She walked on and on, till she knew she had gone far enough to have reached home four times over. Her feet felt and she at last stood quite still, helplessly, she knew that she was lost. All at once the wood become lonely and terrible and she broke into loud wailing. Kaloo, then she bear heard her voice.

Being reminded by it, of her own cub, which had got lost, she moved noiselessly towards the sound. But other ears heard it too.

A tawny form began to creep stealthily in the same direction. Her limbs looked heavy and his paws were large compared with his small, flat oval head.

When he caught the sight of the cying child, he stopped, then he crept forward once more stealthily than before, with his neck stretched out in line with his tail.

He made no sound, but Moraa felt that he was there. She stopped her crying and glanced suddenly round and fixed a clear look upon his glaring green eyes. It was the empty groom which had made Moraa fear. She knew it was leopard but she too was small to have any terror of an animal. The panther shifted his eyes uneasily as she stared at him. The anger grew within him, and she lashed his tail with angry jerk. He was working himself upto the final and fatal spring. Just then a strange thing happened, out from behind the building, a boulder shambled the huge black form of Kaloo, the she-bear.

She was at Moraa's side. In an instant she rose upon her hind legs, and squealed defiance to the leopard. As soon as Moraa saw her 'great big dog' (which she knew all the time to be a bear) she seemed to realise that she was frightened of the panther

With a sob, she sprang and hid her tear tainted little face in the bear's shaggy flank, clutching at the soft fur with both hands.

As for the leopard, he was surprised and more than surprised. If this child belonged to Kaloo, he wanted none of her. Read the following passage and then answer questions 39 -50

Kenyan's have over the past few years discarded the fast food culture, evolving into more health-conscious society.

Most people have turned to traditional African dishes and establishments offering these delicacies are popular with Nairobi's working class, a study has revealed.

The study shows that despite supermarket chains introducing ready- to- eat packaged meals in their stock of consumer products, Kenyans can afford to eat out. However, 31 percent of these lucky few prefer a home cooked meal. This can be attributed to cultural values, the relative high cost of eating out and security concerns. In any case, most families value time spent together at home in an atmosphere that allows for bonding and catching up on each other's lives.

Only a ³third of the population sample consumes frozen foods. 74 percent of Kenyans have remained loyal to traditional foods and a vast majority appear to enjoy taking time to prepare a good meal. Partly to blame for this is that most households take meticulous care in preparing meals, owing to the presence of housewives and mothers who deserve pleasure from cooking for their families.

The majority of Kenyans -93 percent -regarding maize flour as their staple food, a fact attributed to the number of times it is consumed in households weekly.

Almost half of the frequent shoppers buy maize flour more than five times a week. According to the survey, rice and wheat flour are the next most popular foods. 60 percent of Kenyans households eat rice on a weekly basis compared to 26 percent who consume wheat products. Maize flour, it was noted, is consumed in most households at least twice a week.

Kenyans seem to have realised the detrimental effects a long-term fast food consumption on the human body. Over 90 percent of the population consumes fresh fruits and vegetables chiefly to meet their nutritional needs.

Fresh meat is favoured by the population sampled, with fish and chicken lagging far behind. The latter are considered costly and identified with certain communities. In fact almost 40 percent of the sampled population said they preferred slaughtering chicken as opposed to buying pre-packaged cuts.

Although most supermarket chains stock meat products, a majority of Kenyans prefer to purchase their cuts from butcheries. Such meat is seen as fresher and less costly.

A few years ago, most people preferred to purchase groceries fresh from farm, hence the concept of open air markets. However, things have changed, supermarkets have grown in importance as convenient shopping outlets for vegetables although the prohibitive cost of fruits have prevented a similar trend.

Another reason people are turning to supermarkets for their vegetable needs is the wanting standards of cleanliness in open air markets.

No doubt, the clean-up campaigns that yielded 6,000 rats at a popular market in Nairobi city is still fresh in consumer's minds. The need to clean-up open-air markets in Kenya, making them conducive for both sellers and buyers, came out strongly in the survey. Supermarket chains need to stock up on local vegetables, fruits and meat while charging fair price for them.

“NISHASHINDA NOBEL” ndiyo maneno aliyotangulia nayo msomi maarufu prof Ngugi wa Thiong’o tulipokutana naye kwa mara ya kwanza katika maisha yangu.

Nilikuwa na ari ya kumwona msomi huyu ambaye tangu ^Utoni nimekuwa nikisoma kazi zake za kubuni ambazo ^Umeniathiri sana, hasa katika mwegemeo wangu wa kifalsafa.

Alionekana mtulivu na mwenye nguvu. Akiwana umri wa miaka 77, ni dhahiri tarajio la kila mmoja, kama ilivyo kawaida katika jamii za kiafrika ni kuonekana aliyepungukiwa na nguvu pamoja na afya. Hata hivyo hali ya Ngugi ni tofauti kwani ufahamu wake wa historia ni wa kushangaza ikikumbukwa kuwa angali anaendelea na uandishi wake.

Baada ya kikao cha kawaida na wanahabari, nilimwomba twende pembezoni ambapo ningepata nafasi ya kumhoji zaidi kuhusu maisha yake na mitazamo aliyonayo kuhusu mikondo mbali mbali duniani katika nyanja tofauti. Ikuwepo fasihi mustakabali wa lugha za Kiafrika na siasa.

Kwanza nilimwelekezea swali la sababu yake ya kutoshinda tuzo la Nobeli katika fasihi licha ya kuwa mmoja wapo wa uandishi maarufu sana zaidi barani Afrika na duniani kote.

Baada ya kutathmini swali hilo kwa muda alicheka. Aliniangalia na kuniambia kuwa “Alishinda Nobeli zamani sana, tangu alipoanza uandishi wake.” Nobeli yangu huwa ninaishinda kila siku, na kila wakati ninapona kazi zangu zikiwa na athari kwa wasomaji ambao kimsingi ndiyo walengwa wangu.

“Nilidhani Nobeli ni tuzo tu ya kuwashukuru waandishi-

kwa juhudi zao, ila kila mwandishi hushinda Nobeli yake kibinafsi kila mara kazi zake zinapokuwa na athari hasa kwa jamii.

Alisema, “Kwa uhisi wangu vitabu vyangu vimekuwa na athari nyingi kwa jamii kwani kwa sasa, lengo langu kuu limekuwa ni kuwa sauti ya kutetea udumishaji wa lugha asili inayobadilika kila siku.”

Prof Ngugi alisema kuwa kama msanii furaha yake kuu inatokana na midahalo ambayo huwa inaadaliwa kila mara kujadili fikra zake kuhusu jamii na masuala yanayoikabili kwani kile ambacho huzaliwa na midahalo kama hiyo ni kubuniwa kwa sera na sheria. Sheria hizo baadaye ndizo hutumiwa kama kigezo cha kufanikisha ndoto zake.

Kwa mfano alirejelea sheria iliyopendekezwa mapema mwaka huu na Waziri wa Elimu Prof Jacob Kaimenyi akitaka kila so mo katika shule za msingi na upili zianze kufunzwa kwa lugha asili.

Kulingana na Prof. Ngugi, huo huenda ukawa ni mwanzo wa ndoto yake ya ufufuzi wa matumizi ya lugha za Kiafrika miongoni mwa jamii mbalimbali.

“Habari kama hizo angaa ni za kutia moyo. Ni mekuwa katika vita hivi kwa muda mrefu.....na sitokoma hadi nione kuwa ndoto hii inafanikiwa kwa watoto wangu ambao piani waandishi wanaoimbukia,” Akasema.
